

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

1.1 BACKGROUND

Freedom enables us to choose what we want to do, or which path we want to take for our life. However, for some reasons, some people have their future interfered with by their parents simply because they disagree with their children's decisions, or they think that their children's decision is not good enough. Moreover, those parents always keep meddling with their children's lives and always make decisions. They do not let their kids take care of their own life.

Usually, parents who meddle in their kid's life decision already has a plan to make their kids inherit their business, however as a kid there are some reasons why we do not want to inherit or take over the family businesses that they try to pass to us. First it is because of our dream, and some of us as their children have our own passion in another career or jobs that we see, and when we think that the job is fun to do also makes us want to do the job, or choosing that career path that looks fun for us.

This literary work that I am going to create is just a picture of how we feel about not being able to express our thought nor make our own decisions. Through this fiction, it is expected that the readers could get a picture of how other people feel when they have to do or to become something that they do not want to be. This literature work is a sort of reflection of the importance of respecting someone else choice. People have rights to make their own life and to go through their own paths

1.2 OBJECTIVE OF STUDY

- To create a short story that tells the reader about freedom.
